Offering online access to millions of pages of British and Irish newspapers from 1703-2003, the British Newspaper Archive is a fantastic family history research resource.

Newspapers from the British Library’s extensive collection are scanned everyday, producing digital copies that can be searched from anywhere in the world.

As well as giving insights into how some of the biggest events in history were reported at the time, the British Newspaper Archive helps users to discover the worlds in which their ancestors lived.

The British Newspaper Archive includes:

- News Articles
- Family Notices
- Letters
- Obituaries
- Advertisements
- Illustrations

The British Newspaper Archive is fully searchable, allowing users to enter the names of ancestors, events, places or organisations and instantly find matching articles.
